Lesson summary

Mental health is something we all have. It consists of our thoughts, feelings, moods and behaviours.

It is important to have support in place when we are not feeling our best. The support we need in the moment, afterwards and in the future will be individual to us and depend on the situation we are in.