Lesson summary

- Mental health is something we all have. It consists of our thoughts, feelings, moods, and behaviours.
- Mental health can be shown as a spectrum. It can move along the spectrum over time and in response to different factors and experiences.
- Good mental health means feeling able to cope with life's challenges by managing our feelings and asking for support when needed.